RESEARCH PROJECTS AND ELECTRONIC MEDIA

January 2018 — Present. Co-founder and Co-editor of the online site Filosofia. An Encyclopedia of Russian Thought. With Prof. Alyssa DeBlasio (Dickinson College). This research project covers major Russian philosophical trends, ideas and their representatives from the middle of the 20 c. to the present (the period the least explored in the West). Along with editing, I have authored sixteen entries, each about 3000–5000 words: S. Averintsev, V. Bibler, Ya. Druskin, Yu. Lotman, A. Solzhenistyn, A. Sinyavsky, A. Men et al.; Ambiotopia, Cosmism, Culturionics, Platonism–Marxism, and Transculture. The site: <http://filosofia.dickinson.edu>

2006 - Present. Founding Director and Chair of Scholarly Council, Center for Creative Development of Russian Language. The Center is affiliated with St. Petersburg University and conducts annual selection of the Russian "Word of the Year" and "Neologism of the Year" since 2007. I have been the head of the Council of Experts (writers, linguists, journalists, cultural scholars) and organized the process of the selection of "The Word of the Year" that concludes in December of each year. This annual action has been highlighted by Russian and Western media (including Washington Post and Financial Times).

July 1995- Author of the Internet sites and projects:
